

I'm concerned that allowing broadband communications over power lines is going to cause interference to vast majority of high frequency (HF) communications. This potentially affects amateur radio operators, the US Military and other governmental agencies and any other user of the HF spectrum.

Based upon my experience with leakage from the cable TV systems I'm not satisfied that the leakage RFI can or will be adequately controlled to prevent unwanted interference.